Pilgrim's Progress' Appears in BYU Premiere Production

By Meredith Embury
Universe Culture Writer

The first American premiere of John Bunyan's opera opens Monday at 8:15 in the de Jong Concert Hall. "Pilgrim's Progress" will be heard for the first time in the Western Hemisphere Monday directed by Professor Brandt, director of BYU's Opera Shop, the religiously

UN Meets Today

Stan A. Taylor, professor of political science at BYU, will be the keynote at the first session of Interimtown Modelled Nations today at 3 p.m. in the Varsity Center. Registration is from 10 a.m. to noon, followed by Taylor's speech. Luncheon sessions will be 12 p.m. to 6 p.m. Several Assembly sessions are scheduled Saturday beginning at 8 a.m. in 356 Wilkinson Hall. Dr. Robert Wood of the University of Virginia will act as the president of the General Assembly.

allegorical opera will feature in addition to a talented cast of singers, several innovative technical effects.

One of these is the use of rear projection. Movie scenes and still shots will be projected on a giant on-stage screen to augment the actual scenery.

The scenery itself is abstract and relatively simple—four huge rock clusters made from lumber and colored styrofoam. This setting is highly appropriate to the dream-like mood of Pilgrim's quest for the Celestial City.

Adapted from John Bunyan's seventeenth-century novel, the opera depicts the trials of the righteous Pilgrim on his journey toward Life, Eternal Life. Again and again he is discouraged and tempted and tried by such creatures as Lord Hate Good, Madam Wanton, and Worldly Glory.

But the representatives of Good do not fail and Pilgrim is repeatedly restored by the Evangelist, the Voice of the Apollyon and the Three Shining Ones.

Cast members include Clayne Robison and Ardin Hopkins as Pilgrim, Professor Robert Downs as John Bunyan, Theron Robison as the Evangelist and Walter Tudolph as the Voice of the Apollyon and Simon Magus.

Set designer for the religious opera is Karl Pope, Robert Struthers has served as technical director and Max Goughly has done the stage direction. Costumes are by Beverly Warner.

Tickets are available at the Concert Hall Ticket Office Harris Fine Arts Center for $1.50, $2, and $2.50. Student tickets (with activity card) are 50 cents.

Time Change Here Again

Oh, well it's that time again—time to change the clocks for daylight savings time—but the question is always which way to set the clock.

The consensus is that those people who want to may set their clock on hour ahead, like from 10 to 11, for instance, you will be one hour late until next time the change comes.

MILITARISM NO ANSWER

Editor:

Regarding the editorial on the ROTC:

General Authorities have suggested that we do not enlist unless there is no other alternative. Furthermore, I find the ROTC suppression of the "Center table on Volunteer Army petitions directly counter to the statements of the First Presidency in 1945 against the draft."

I do not see militarism as the best patriotism. Our image is not good except among materialists and hawkish WASPs. Nazis loved discipline of course. Hawkish attitudes, including preventive war, are inconsistent with the Gospel. I dare anyone to find Christ advocating patriotism before world brotherhood. Governments are nearly all wicked.

To quote one person: "Only 'weirdos and kooks' could on the one hand, deplore riots and destruction and on the other hand divert funds from programs designed to prevent such disorders to destroy another country." On the back of one anti-war paper put out by a group working inside communist countries against communism) showing a skull with a helmet on it was "All roads lead to peace... eventually."

ATTENTION JOHN STONE

Editor:

After being a student for three years, working here at the Y for another year, perhaps I will have the opportunity to express my feelings about "student government" as long as everyone else is putting their two cents worth in.

I'm getting just a little sick and tired of hearing about this "ineffective" student government from people such as John Stone who the rest who have done nothing but gripe. I have worked in student government for two years while a student and have spent eight hours a day working on the fourth floor for about a year now. It just seems to me that if those who are presently involved in student government (by the way, a good majority put in from 10-20 hours a week) are doing such a poor job—they could sure use a little help along with all this griping! It is obvious that Mr. Stone and others feel that leadership is grossly lacking. For those who are so enlightened on leadership, perhaps they would care to come up and straighten the fourth floor out on a few things. We just need a few helpful people. Perhaps, if leadership is so poor and Mr. Stone has so many criticisms and can see the problems of the fourth floor so clearly, he should run for an office... just to straighten everyone out on how to run things. I'm sure that after a year in office, he would have the fourth floor running properly so that it could be placed into the hands of others who can so clearly see the faults of student government.

There seems to be another gross misconception about the fourth floor. Students seem to feel that they must be "John Cools" in order to even approach the fourth floor. It's true that there are a few "John Cools", but if you work with them, you will find out that they are human and just like everyone else. They have their good points and their bad points. Most of the kids who work in student government are ordinary students who are willing to put their time where their mouth is and try and make the student programs more effective. What the fourth floor really needs is a little elbow grease with the gripes!! (We need both, by the way... it just seems that we are getting one without the other.)

One other minor point that I might make before I end my first, only and probably last word to the editor—To Miss Diana Ward. Just for your information, the judges that were called for "Spring Thing" were working under a couple of handicaps. It seems that they weren't given any judging sheets nor were they instructed on the factors they were to judge on. (Let me say at this point, I agree about judges coming off campus, but in this case that isn't the point.) The judges spent a good deal of the first part of the show trying to find paper and pencil which needless to say, for any judge, was rather tedious. In the conclusion of the show, the judges weren't given time enough to deliberate. Luckily they all agreed on the first place, but were divided into making decisions on the other places. Steve Bos had nothing to do with the judging, despite what the "underground" had to say.

I could go on at length and try and clear up the other common misconceptions about programs and problems here on the fourth floor, but if you aren't satisfied... come up and volunteer your services. Who knows, you may be the one that revolutionizes the entire system on the fourth floor. (Let it be noted at sunrise.) I agree that student government has its faults, but don't sit there and complain without doing something!

I prefer to remain Anonymous

STOP ABSTRACTIONS

Editor:

Recent comments which appeared in the DAILY UNIVERSE concerning student government need clarification. It was stated in the April 17 issue that "Student representation is neither sought nor is it allowed to influence administrative guidelines in any university policy of import such as curriculum, standards, speaker selection, ad infinitum."

The student body president and vice president of academics sit on the speakers committee and this year Todd Christofferson has influenced this committee. The Academics Office sponsored Raymond Scruggs and many other speakers who would not be the first choice of the Speakers Committee. This past Tuesday I made presentation to the Dean's Council concerning standards at the invitation of the Dean of Women Students.

The article in the UNIVERSE cited the ASBYU offices with "frivolous spending." I challenge any person who made that remark to prove that statement. His first comment would probably be the "good-will trips" and secondly the stipends given to student officers. Many students do not realize that after the trip to California a student officer from San Jose State came to BYU for a week, and since this interchange we have not read any anti-BYU statements issued by the student leaders of San Jose State.

If it had not been for the stipend we would never have been able to run for and serve as Social Varsity President. Maybe the reason behind the other argument is that only the rich should become student leaders.

I challenge all candidates to stop dealing in abstractions and misleading the student body with irresponsible statements. I welcome and invite any student to discuss these matters with me.

SENSITIVITY

Editor:

In regards to Bro. Voigt's letter about sensitivity training, I was my impression that the brethren were referring to group sessions in which the participants took each other down. It is my opinion that if a group session is conducted in a spirit of love, and the participants have a genuine concern for each other, these sessions can be very helpful. The participants can, if they have such a concern, bring out experiences in their own lives that can help the others. It is my opinion that group discussions held on this campus are conducted in a spirit of love. If my opinion is counter to church policy I will be glad to change my opinion.

OFF TOP OF HEAD

Editor:

Jerry Garrett's editorial (Monday) shows that he does not know that the V.P. of Academics, for example, offers free tutoring for all those who ask for it. It also shows that he really does not know the purpose of the vice presidential office.

Jerry would probably go to the Secretary of the Treasury in Washington to get a check cashed. Articles which do not have the proper amount of research, simply written off the top of the head, seem quite popular in the UNIVERSE these days. If the writers on the staff would start writing news instead of editorials maybe the students would be informed of all that the ASBYU does instead of what they do not do.

Sincerely,
Tim Christofferson

GRADES

Editor:

Inasmuch as it has been my pleasure to face near one twentieth of the student body in Physics 100 this school year and particularly since final grades will soon be issued I wish to make some observations about grades.

As I have explained to the class, I thoroughly disagree with the practice that is customarily called "grading on the curve" whereby assigned percentages of the class receive the various grades. Instead, I have strongly advocated that the teacher of a large class determine the performance of the class on a numerical scale that is linear (e.g., twice as many points represents a performance twice as good), using whatever criteria he thinks most appropriate, and that he also determine the dividing point on the scale between passing and failing (which would know better than he), but that from there on the assignment of grades be done in a uniform way for all large classes of the entire university (with some possible exceptions such as P.E. classes) by assigning the various grades to equal portions of the scale regardless of how many students receive a particular grade. The width of the scale portion for each grade would be adjusted to yield a predetermined grade-point average for the passing members of the class. For a very large class of an introductory course numbered in the 100-199 range I have recommended that a grade-point average of 2.3 be applied, and this what I used in determining the grade distribution in my Physics 100 class last fall.

It is true that in this manner the individual grades of the passing students became normalized to the performance of the rest of the class. However, unless some sort of normalization is done much of the possible meaning of the grade is sacrificed. Similarly, meaningful information is lost and serious injustice is done to some students when each teacher uses his own formula in assigning the letter grades.

SDS VS. ROTC

Editor:

I would like to comment on Mr. Glen Willardson's recent Perspective column, "R.O.T.C. vs. Campus Protests" (DAILY UNIVERSE, April 18, 1969). I agree with the logic of Mr. Willardson's statement: "Protestors argue that military training has no place in an academic institution. But why not? If engineers, mathematicians and journalists can be trained in universities, why can't people who want to make military a career be trained there?"

I agree. At BYU, where each individual is encouraged to develop a unique point of view and proceed with it as at a university such as BYU, which stands for the ideals of free agency, charity, brotherly love, and tolerance. Is no reason why the science of militarism should not have a place on our campus. Likewise, by the same logic, is there no reason why the "science of protest" should not have a place on our campus?

Mr. Willardson states: "...the basic purpose of the military is to maintain peace and to defend aggressors." Note, the purpose of the military is not to spill blood.

For the purposes of this letter, I submit that the basic purpose of protest is to declare positions, dissent, objection, or unwillingness to accept a present course of action or belief. Note, the purpose of protest is not to spill blood.

I submit that, ultimately, tolerance of protest groups will result in no more bloodshed than tolerance of the military establishment.

May both the S.D.S. and R.O.T.C. live together in peace.

UNREST

Editor:

The blame for student unrest must be shouldered in part by the conservative nature of the university system. The university as we know it was born during the Middle Ages. To maintain contemporary standards the institution appears to remain in the Dark Ages.

The university system today suffering from a disease called irrelevancy. It fails to deal with problems which are relevant to modern students. That is why civil rights and the war in Vietnam issues put forward by "revolutionists." It is their attempt to bring the university at long last into the twentieth century.

When administrators are deciding what to do about student unrest they should formulate long term policy as well as short term one. If some college president wishes to react emotionally with arrests and permanent suspensions, that is unfortunate. But it is even more unfortunate when they fail to adequately assess the problem (irrelevancy) confronting the university system.

RELEVANCE

Editor:

Regarding the "Relevance" letter in Monday's UNIVERSE:

Although little or none of the suggestions will be heeded, as typical of BYU, I would like suggest a couple of other areas beneficial study. Namely, the in-depth study of hippie-freebie philosophy and philosophies upon which it rests both objectively and within the context of Mormonism. Furthermore, the emphasis of the Hunts' suggested programs is based on the study of the black and blue cultures. But of equal importance is the study of the American Indian. Indians are particularly refer to the contemporary attitudes expressed by the traditional Indian and life movement, which is vehemently opposed to white civilization because they see it as the down-road (and this is not minority or old-men movement, it is supported by the millions young who see the Old W. returning). I also trust that a dissent area would have a very heavy emphasis on the anti-movement.

Thank You

Development Director To Seek Doctorate

Raymond E. Beckham, director of development at Brigham Young University and president of the BYU First Stake of the LDS Church, has been granted a leave of absence from the university during the 1969-70 year, according to President Ernest L. Wilkinson.

Mr. Beckham, who has been development director since January of 1966 and acting director for 18 months prior to that time, will pursue doctoral study in the field of communications.

Working with university and Church officials, he organized the present University Development Program which started in January, 1966. In a recent report to the National Development Council at its annual meeting in Salt Lake City, Mr. Beckham reported that more than $20 million in assets had been received by the university during the past 40 months as gifts from friends and alumni of the university.

Mr. Beckham first joined the BYU administrative staff in 1949 as assistant director of the Extension Division. In this position he organized the BYU Evening School and the Department of Travel Studies. He later was appointed as director of public services for the university.

Baseballers Face Wyo; Hope To End Slump

Two baseball teams most anxious to pull out of a slump, Wyoming and Brigham Young, will share their anxieties and aspirations this weekend on the Cougars' new diamond in Provo.

Of the two, Wyoming has the most to be concerned about. The Cowboys were blanked in three straight games last week in Salt Lake City, and that represents a lot of innings to have to play without pushing a score of some kind across the plate.

The Cougars, too, have been a little on edge since dropping a pair to Beehive rival Weber State in Ogden last Monday, but the Cougars were able to score against the Wildcats: three runs in 16 innings.

With the two Northern Division teams in a slump of sorts, it will be interesting to see which club will explode first with the hits and runs.

The first game is scheduled for Friday at 2:30 p.m., and a doubleheader will follow on Saturday beginning at 1 p.m.

Wyoming is currently 2-4 in league play, while the Cougars are currently tied for first place with Utah. BYU and Utah each have a 4-2 record for games played thus far.

Intra Track Forms

Due Today

Today at 5 p.m. is the deadline for turning in entry forms for the intramural track and field meet. The forms are available at the Intramural Office, 122 Richards P.E. Bldg.

The running events will take place Monday at 5 p.m. in Cougar Stadium with the field events slated for Wednesday, same time, same place. Trophies will be awarded to the individual winners and also the team winner.

Executive Assistants Speak

In an effort to explain our stand concerning the election of Social Vice-President, we, 9 of the 11 Social Office Executive Assistants, hereby state our preference of candidacy.

AL HEILNER has consistently demonstrated his leadership abilities this past year by assuming more than his share of responsibility. His manner of carrying through his assignments has been faultless. He has innovated many new ideas that have been initiated this year.

AL is dependable in all ways and under all circumstances. He is acquainted with the operations of every area of the office. Much of the credit of the successful social atmosphere that has been established this year has been due to the efforts of AL HEILNER.

We certify his leadership ability and urge you to vote for him. We know AL can do more for you!
